Dear Sir/Madam,

Application for the Position of an Editor

I write to apply for the position of an editor at the University of Nigeria Press.

Although I studied electrical engineering, I have great passion for writing and editing, which was why the English and Literary Studies department was like my second department during my undergraduate years. I won the poetry prize at the 2016 Literary Arts Festival and was the first runner-up for the short story prize at the 2013 Festival.

I have been published and equally recognized beyond the university, as my CV enclosed herewith will attest. I have some experience editing and proofreading different kinds of writing, from academic papers to creative writing, as can be seen in the CV as well.

Being a writer who has worked with editors myself, I understand how writers hold dear their intellectual output and how they need an editor who can show some empathy towards the work without getting too attached. Being a lifelong voracious reader, I have read books which I felt could have turned out better, to be masterpieces, if only the editors had tried a bit more. I pledge to be an editor with the right mix of empathy and indifference, who will never give up on a work until it has become the best it can ever be.

After five years of undergraduate studies here, I feel an overpowering urge to give back to the university, my alma mater, and I believe working for the University Press as an editor is how I can give my all, my best.

Besides my CV, I have also enclosed my degree and NYSC certificates.

I hope to hear from you at your earliest convenience.

Yours faithfully,

Ifechukwu, Nzubechukwu.
